

South Wales Police Headquarters

Project overview

The home of the South Wales Police force requires maximum security at all times and Whitehead were chosen to develop and enhance the systems used to ensure this. The project included the installation of the latest high security access control systems and internal/external general and security lighting, all with stand-by electricity generator and UPS back up.

Challenges

Operating within an operational high security environment with the minimum of disruption to its most important, sensitive and confidential work. As a busy operations centre safety was also a major challenge.

Solutions

Utilising its well developed processes, Whitehead adopted a highly professional and efficient approach, co-ordinating a number of onsite operative and partners and ensuring that the client was consulted at every stage.

Project title

» South Wales Police Headquarters

Project Manager

» Ray Bird

Sector

» Public/Police

Location

» Bridgend, South Wales

Client name

» Carillion

Start date

» March 2004

Completion date

» December 2004

Value

» £400,000

"We were delighted to have been presented with an exciting and challenging opportunity to work at the South Wales Police HQ. We maintained extreme sensitivity to the highly confidential work carried out and met the high security specifications set by the client."

Ray Bird - Project Manager
Whitehead Building Services